School Spending Disparities

One measure commonly used to examine school spending discrepancies is the coefficient of variation. States shown with higher coefficient values have larger differences in spending per student across their districts.

Source: Governing Magazine, August 2018